DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's Appeal brief of the finality of the rejection of the last Office action is persuasive and, therefore, the finality of that action is withdrawn.

The Examiner apologized for the improper rejection. However, upon further consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection is made as the following indications.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter "non-converted character data" which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

3. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Jonsson et al. (US Patent 6,385,585).

As to claim 1, Jonsson et al. disclose a method for transmitting a character message in a mobile communication terminal while maintaining a conversation by telephone (see col.10 lines 32-39), the examiner interprets "during an ongoing conversation" reads on "while maintaining conversation", comprising the steps of:

Setting the mobile communication terminal to a character message-transmitting/receiving mode while in a state in which a speech path has been established between the mobile communication terminal and a mobile communication terminal of a party other than the user (see col.3 lines 46-67); and inputting a character message while in the character message-transmitting/receive mode, processing the written character message and transmitting the written character message including non-converted character data to the communication terminal of the other party via the established speech path in the character message-transmitting/receiving mode (see col.10 lines 39-44, a short message corresponds to "non-converted character data").

As to claim 2, Jonsson et al. disclose returning the mobile communication terminal of the user to a phone mode after the transmission of the character message to the mobile communication terminal of the other party (see col.11 lines 39-44).

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jonsson et al. and further in view of Makela et al. (US Patent 6,301,338).

As to claim 3, Jonsson et al. fail to disclose the character message input during the character message-transmitting/receiving mode is selected among character messages previously written and stored in a registered state.

Makela et al. disclose the character message input during the character message-transmitting/receiving mode is selected among character messages previously written and stored in a registered state (see col.5 lines 44-51). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the system of Jonsson et al. with the above teaching of Makela et al. in order to provide user conveniently to transmit pre-stored messages to other party.

6. Claims 4-5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jonsson et al. and further in view of Svensson (US Patent 5,687,216).

As to claim 4, Jonsson et al. fail to disclose receiving a character message from the mobile communication terminal of the other party, the mobile communication terminal displaying the received character message.

Svensson discloses receiving a character message from the mobile communication terminal of the other party, the mobile communication terminal displaying the received character message (see col.6 lines 8-9). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the system of Jonsson et al. with the above teaching of Svensson in order to provide another message is received before the users reads the current message (as suggested by Svensson, see col.6 lines 1-7).

As to claim 5, the modified Jonsson et al. disclose all limitations as to claims 1 and 4 above.
